DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 26 is objected to because of the following informalities:

Claim 26 is depended on cancelled claim. Appropriate correction is required.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 2, 4-6, 8, 9, 19, 21-24, 27-33, and 35-39 rejected under rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jordan US patent 6,172,428 and in view of Asai US patent 6,525,430

Jordan'428 discloses digital control system and method for load monitoring for a generator, wherein the generator is adapted to supply power to a load (column 9, line 9), the apparatus comprising; a sensor ( column 25, line 54 ) adapted to sense a signal supplied to the load (out put voltage ) and a humanly perceptible indicator ( switchboard ,see Fig.3 ) adapted to output at least one discontinuous humanly perceptible indication of the sensed signal supplied to the load, the indicator and sensor are inherently an integral part of the generator, the indicator comprises at least one of a liquid crystal display (330 ,column 13,line 7 ,Fig.3) a series of light emitting diodes ( see control panel) ,the sensor senses a frequency of the signal supplied to the load (column 9,line 5).

Jordan'428 teaches all limitations of claimed invention except a humanly perceptible indicator adapted to output plug a signal sensor to sense a frequency higher than 56.5 or 58.5 Hz.

Asai'430 discloses a portable generator having a humanly perceptible indicator adapted to output plug (45,46 Fig. 1) for the purpose of connecting the generator to the power source.

Therefor it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine Jordan'428 digital control system for generator with a humanly perceptible indicator adapted to output plug as taught by Asai'430 for the purpose of connecting the generator to the power source.

5. With regards to claims 7,26, 34 and 40.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a signal sensor to sense a frequency higher than 56.5 or 58.5 Hz, to control the rotating speed of generator ,since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d.

Claim 9-13,15-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jordan'428 and in view of Frank US patent 6,084,313.

Art Unit: 2834

Jordan'428 teaches all limitation of claim 10 except for a socket type plug to be coupled to generator.

Frank'313 discloses a generator set with control panel having a socket type plug to be coupled to generator (32c, 32, b 32 c) for purpose of connecting out put power.

Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combining Jordan'428 generator with a socket type plug to be coupled to generator as taught by Frank'313 for purpose of connecting out put power.

Regarding claim 18 Frank'313 discloses a generator set with control panel having a socket type plug interconnected to a housing (Fig.1a).
